Next Steps

Numbering and Sequencing

Sequencing determines when each council seat is up for election, and then residents will vote in those election districts every four years thereafter. Three districts will be scheduled for 2024 and two trustee areas will be scheduled for 2026.

The City Council will determine how the map is sequenced and how each district is numbered.

How to determine sequencing:

- Hear input from the public, if any.
- Staff has created a proposed sequencing schedule in a way that will be least disruptive to the natural election cycle.

Next Steps

As the decision-making authority, the City Council will discuss which maps they want to move forward with. This includes any draft map or publicly submitted map.

Tonight, the City Council will:

- Receive and review public testimony.
- Discuss which map they want to move forward with and then decide its numbering and sequencing.
- First vote on map.

Next Steps

As the decision-making authority, the City Council will discuss which maps they want to move forward with. This includes any draft map or publicly submitted map.

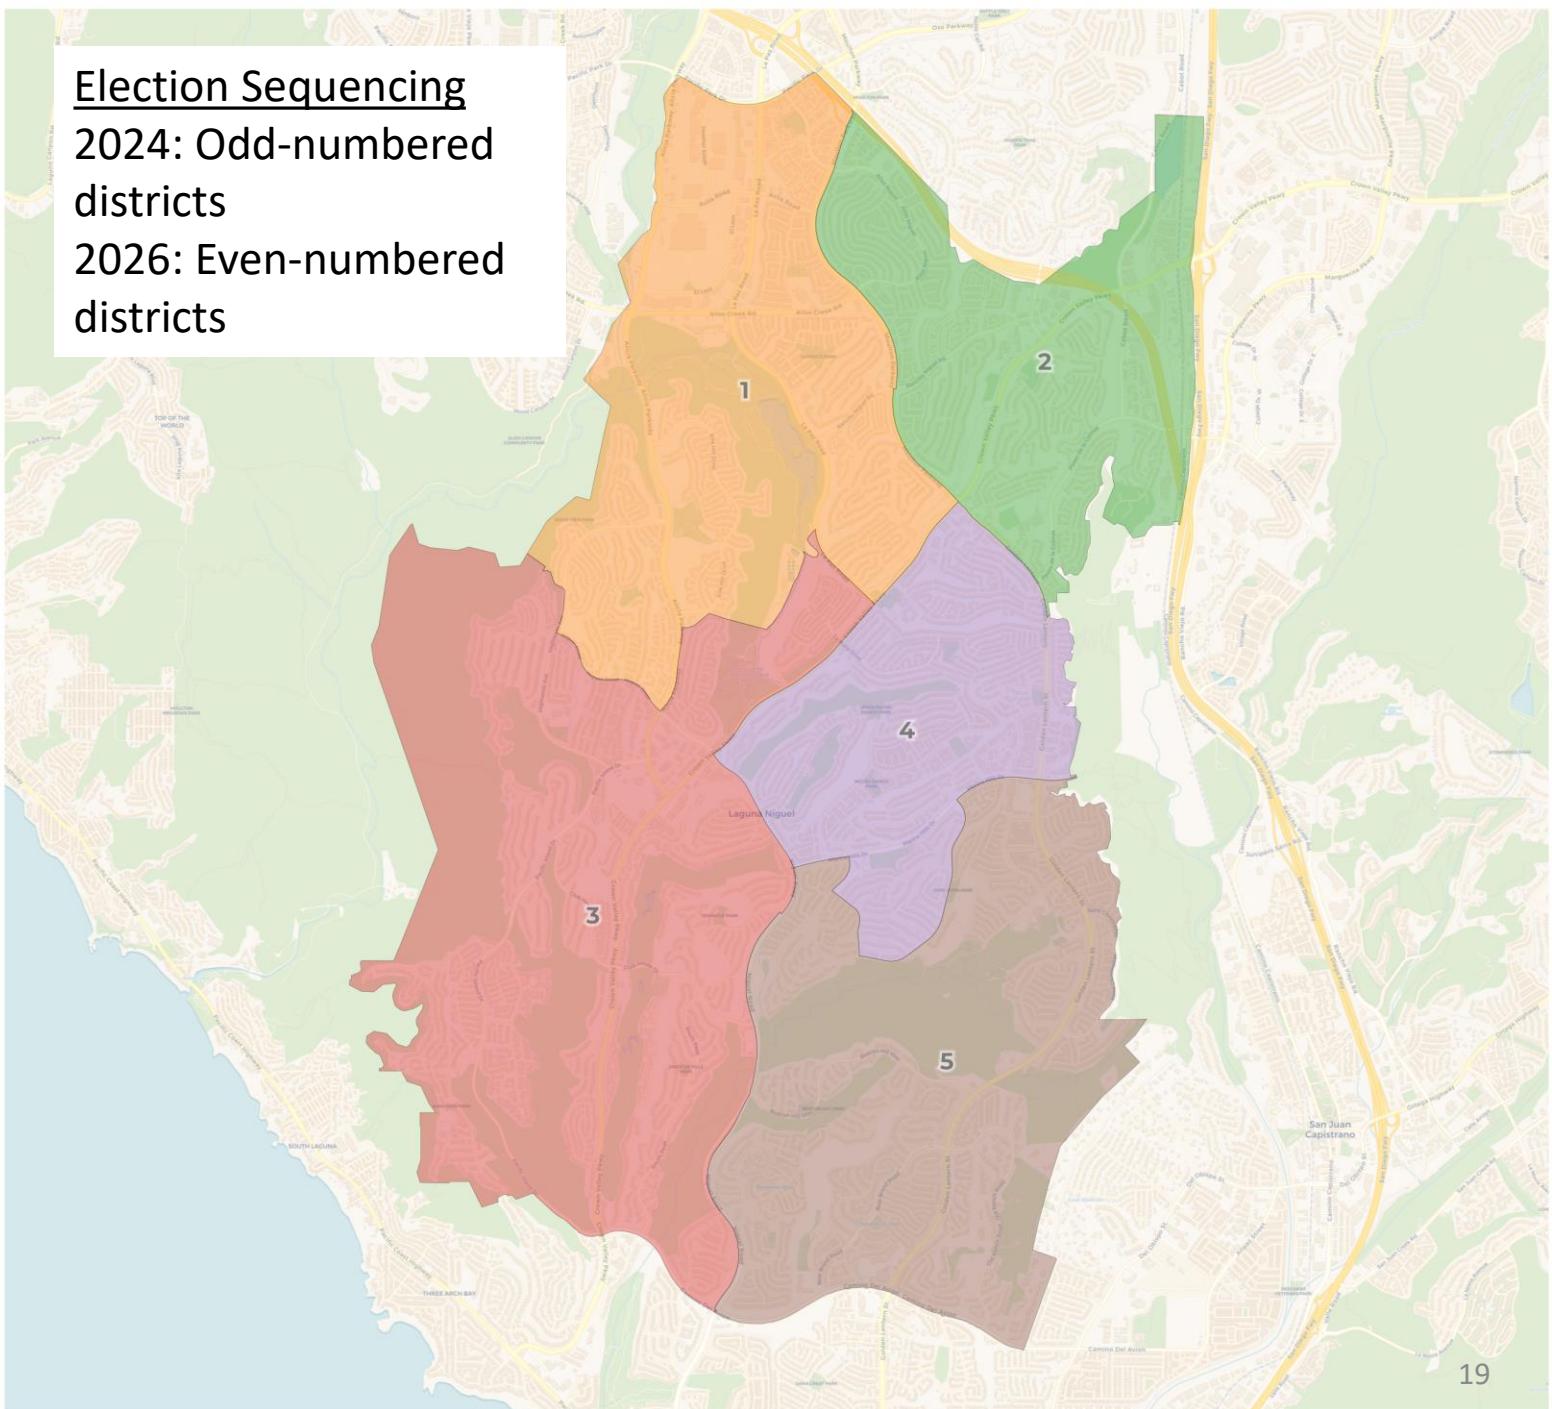

At the final hearing:

- Continue to receive and review public testimony.
- Final vote on map with numbering and sequencing of districts.
